TEN RELATIVES OF SNIPES SAID TO HAVE BEEN INSANE

Service Officer Journeys From
The South to Murder
Trial

RELATIVES AT COURT

One of Jurors Locked Up in Hotel During Night Is Mother of Ten

DOYLESTOWN, May 14.—A service officer making the journey to Bucks County from the Southern home town of William Snipes, 26, Philadelphia, who is on trial for the murder of Edward Gamils, proprietor of the Blue Spruce Inn, Trevese, furnished the court here with a brief history of the Snipes family. The officer gave the information that Snipes' grandfather was insane, that his mother died of insanity, eight cousins are either in insane asylums or institutions for the feeble-minded, and that one cousin of the young man on trial set fire to herself and died of the burns inflicted. Snipes, himself, was ill and helpless for a period of two years when he was very small, the service officer volunteered.

Among the visitors at the trial scene today were the four brothers and one sister of Snipes, who motored here from their homes in the south. Front row seats, about 15 feet from the man on trial, they occupied. The members of Snipes' family state they cannot imagine that he could commit a murder, telling that he was always "a good boy." They further stated they believe his contact with "bad company" led to the affair.

The first witness called this morning was Dr. John J. Sweeney, coroner of Bucks County.

It is the first time in years that one of the jurors, a mother of ten children, had been away from home. The second woman on the jury has three children. The other ten are men.

The panel, which includes seven farmers, was locked up for the night at a hotel opposite the Bucks County Court House. Forty-four veniremen were questioned during a period of five hours before the panel was finally completed and sworn in. The members are: Clarence Buckman, 56-year-old farmer, of Buckingham, foreman; Mrs. Lucy Shaffer, 49 years old, of Quakertown, mother of ten children; Mrs. Elizabeth Bowers, 33 years old, of Morrisville; Karl Fabian, 38 years old, of Allentown; Edwin W. Greenlee, 54 years old, retired Morrisville business man; Edward Anderson, 55 years old, of Bristol; G. Warren Slack, 46 years old, of Newtown; Edwin G. Gruver, 55 years old, of Ottsville; Arthur Lear, 42 years old, of Ottsville; Ralph McKenzie, 26 years old, of Ivyland; Albert Brown, 44 years old, of Line Lexington; and Erwin F. Miller, 34 years old of Springfield Township.

District Attorney Arthur M. Eastman and Assistant District Attorney J. Leslie Kilcoyne, who are in charge of the prosecution, will ask the jury to return a verdict of first degree murder, and to impose the death penalty upon Snipes, a tall, slender young man with curly brown hair, who is charged with murdering Gamils during a holdup. The defendant pleaded not guilty yesterday when the indictment was read to him. He showed great interest during the questioning of the jury men and while his counsel, Webster S. Achey, of Doylestown, and Mark Thatcher, of Perkasie, who were appointed by the court, raised technical objections.

OUTLINES VIEWS ON CANAL ABANDONMENT

Morrisville Mayor Addresses
Communication to Courier
On the Subject

ENDORSES THE MOVE

Morrisville, Pa.,
May 13, 1931.

Editor Courier:
There is a Bill before the Legislature at Harrisburg which has caused some comment in the newspapers in the eastern part of the state. It is Senate Bill 974, introduced by Senator C. J. Buckman of Bucks County, on April 27, 1931.

A careful study of this Bill, together with a knowledge of the facts as relate in particular to the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company's holdings and the canal running from Easton to Bristol, would indicate that this Bill really has merit.

The Pennsylvania Canal is unquestionably being operated and maintained at a loss, and if the owners of this property are willing to convey in fee all the right title and interest as a gift to the Commonwealth, that they may be relieved of maintaining this property at such loss, excepting of course, certain water power contractual relationships which they may have at such places as the stretch between Easton and Raubersville, New Hope and Yardley, with the water supplying contracts for industries from Yardley to Bristol, the gift of all of the balance of this property to the Commonwealth is of real value to the State of Pennsylvania.

The wording of the Act relates directly to the improvement of Highways, but it also carries with it the possibility of coordinating other sections of the canal bed with the plan of the Federal Government to canalize the Delaware River from tide water at Morrisville to Easton. In western Pennsylvania, the rivers running through an even more rugged and mountainous area has been canalized by the Federal Government and there is now a Commission operating under the direction of the Commonwealth for the furtherance of these projects. And the development of a waterway from Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown, giving access to the same kind of transportation down the Delaware Valley, as will be provided from Pittsburgh even as far as Erie, then the acquisition of this canal property offered to the State by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company as a gift will be of inestimable value.

With the acquisition of this property, a request of the Congressional Delegation all along the Delaware River for a survey from Morrisville to Easton, by the War Department, to be coordinated with a survey by the Highway Department, looking to a comprehensive development of highway and waterway, will lend much to the intrinsic value of this whole.

ACQUIT EDGELY MAN OF DRUNKEN DRIVING

Herman A. Benecke Freed On Charge After Court
Trial

TWO OFFICERS TESTIFY

DOYLESTOWN, May 14.—Herman A. Benecke, twenty-five, of Edgely, was acquitted of the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor after Judge Hiram H. Keller, who took the case from the jury, directed a verdict for the defendant.

Daniel Ferry and Charles Nichols, officials of the Bristol police force, testified that while making their rounds with an automobile on the morning of March 14 they were attracted by the manner in which the defendant, Benecke, operated his car.

Benecke, who attended a party that evening, said: "I thought it was some of our friends following us in a car trying to 'blow me down' until I caught sight of the seal of the Bristol police car on the rear door of the car, and immediately came to a stop."

Both officers placed the defendant in the police car and took him to the home of Dr. Fred Wagner, of Bristol. He testified that he gave him the customary test for intoxication. "Benecke (Continued on Page 3)

CROP OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT IN COUNTY

Asparagus Cutting Season Is About Two Weeks
Late

INCREASE IN ACREAGE

Commenting on the outlook for crops this summer, County Agent William F. Greenawalt at Doylestown, states that the prospects seem very bright, especially so since the heavy rains during the past few days.

Asparagus cutting, it was stated this morning, has been held back by the dry weather, but since the rain and warm weather of the past few days, the asparagus has been developing rapidly and growers, particularly in the lower end of the county, are beginning in earnest to harvest this season's crop. The cutting season this spring is about two weeks later than last year.

Fruit trees in some sections of the county, said Mr. Greenawalt, have been injured by the heavy frost which preceded the rains. Newtown and Wycombe sections have been hit particularly hard, but as yet it is impossible to determine the extent of the damage.

Good yields of both grain and hay are predicted, according to Mr. Greenawalt, who said that little winter kill was noted in the grain fields. The rain has been very beneficial to the grass and wheat.

Some early sweet corn has been planted, but as yet it is impossible to make predictions concerning the yield. Little field corn has been planted, but farmers throughout the county are engaged in preparing the soil.

Oats and barley have been sown, but because of the dry weather they made little progress. It has been noticed, however, that following the rain they have started to make progress.

Truckers, particularly in the lower part of the county, at present are engaged in setting out their tomato plants. Many of these tomatoes are shipped to the canneries.

Many of the potato growers in the county have completed their planting and this year there will be a slight increase in the acreage.

In traveling throughout the county Mr. Greenawalt said this morning he noticed that farms which have been standing idle for the past few years are being tilled. He said he believes this is caused by the unemployment situation. Many people out of work, he said, rather than remain idle, have started to work on farms which the past few years remained untilled.

Child at Play Struck By Auto in Burlington

BURLINGTON, May 14.—Struck by an automobile as he dashed from the sidewalk where he had been playing with companions, James Marino, 10 years old, of 816 Camden Pike, was probably fatally injured early last evening.

He is now in Burlington County Hospital at Mt. Holly suffering from a fractured skull, a broken wrist, a fractured thigh bone and internal injuries.

James was playing in front of the Burlington Junior High School on High Street, when, according to witnesses, he ran from the curb into the path of a machine driven by James Rudderow, of Third Street, this place. When Rudderow saw the child running blindly into the path of his car he applied the brakes, but he was unable to stop before his vehicle ran the lad down.

Passersby hurried the boy to the Emergency Hospital here, where Dr. Edward Muldoon treated him and ordered him taken to Mt. Holly.

Rudderow surrendered to police, but was later released on his own recognizance.

Whether Lodge will be tried for the murder however, loomed as uncertain. If he is examined by a sanity committee it is believed he will be committed to an institution for the criminally insane.

"NICK" STALLONE IS ACQUITTED ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Verdict Given in Court No. 2
In Trial Before Judge
Keller

EMILIE HOLD-UP CASE

Defense Based Plea That He Was Home the Night of Hold-Up

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., May 14.—Nick Stallone, 20, of 332 Jefferson avenue, Bristol, was acquitted in Bucks County Court, here, yesterday afternoon, of a charge of attempted robbery of William Shoemaker at his store in Emilie on March 24th.

The verdict was given in the trial before Judge Hiram H. Keller in Court Room No. 2.

Stallone based his defense on the plea that he was at home at the time of the hold-up.

William Shoemaker, seventy-eight, who conducts a two room store in Emilie, said: "I was sitting in the back room of my store on the night of March 24 waiting for my coal fire to draw up in order to bank it for the night, when two men entered the store and approached the counter and asked for 'two Lucky Strikes'."

"Just as I turned my back to get them, one of the fellows told me to hand over the money in my cash drawer. I told him that I had my receipts in a bag in the rear of the store. He covered me with a revolver and told me to make it snappy and get the money, when an automobile horn sounded on the outside and both fled."

Shoemaker stated that he was not able to give a description of the wearing apparel of the men, but that he particularly noticed the expression of "scowling and the contour of the man's face holding the weapon."

John Stewart, an officer of the State police force stationed at Morrisville, immediately started an investigation after Shoemaker had given a description of the men.

The defendant, Stallone, was taken to Shoemaker's store on March 26 and questioned and later identified by Shoemaker as the gunman on the night of the attempted holdup. During his detention at the Bristol police station Stallone tried to escape.

"I was nervous," said Stallone, and I asked to go to the toilet when all of a sudden I made up my mind to run away because I heard that police officers put people's feet in boiling water and I was afraid."

Stallone gave a detailed account of his activities during the day and the evening of the robbery.

County Detective Russo testified that he took Stallone to Shoemaker's store and that he told Mr. Shoemaker, "This is a serious case and you must realize the gravity of the situation. I don't want you to guess or think that this man is the man who entered your store and pointed a gun at you. I want you to be so positive that you will not hesitate to take an oath if necessary." He stated that Shoemaker identified the defendant as the man "on account of his scowl and the contour of his face."

Officers Harry Christ and Daniel Ferry testified of their knowledge and participation in the case.

Members of the jury included Elizabeth Kelly, Bristol; Elsie Gill, Doylestown, R. D.; Alfred Guentensperger, Quakertown; Edwin V. Waters, Bristol; Catherine V. Waters, Bristol; Noewood B. Van Cleeft, Yardley; William R. Thomas, Quakertown; Edwin S. Gruver, Ottsville, R. D.; Elizabeth S. Jarvis, Bristol; Mary A. Baines, Bristol, R. D.; Philip G. Pluck, Danboro; Raymond Barndt, Sellersville.

COMMUNITY SPIRIT

Civic prides and community spirit are not measured in costly publicity campaigns, high-salaried press agents, population and public wealth. If they were, the small town would register but faintly these greatly-to-be-desired community virtues.

The truth is that civic pride and community spirit are to be found in their purest and most unselfish form in the small town. The reasons are obvious. In the small town one finds that unity of purpose and neighborliness that are ever absent in large centers of population. Cross-purposes, class conflicts and cut-throat business tactics are foreign to the community of limited populations.

Great cities, only, can afford to spend thousands advertising their advantages. They can buy magazine, newspaper and billboard advertising space, hire "directors of public relations" and finance vast civic improvements, industrial expansion programs and real estate developments. But these material manifestations do not make civic pride and community spirit.

The citizen of the small town takes the greatest pride in his community. The small town newspaper supports every community project and cooperates with every worthy local organization. The small town merchant glories in the fact that he builds his home town when he builds his business. And the small town manufacturer and factory worker know their products are bringing wealth to the community.

When you find civic pride and community spirit in the small town you know it is the real thing, not the synthetic product of hired boosters.

BOON

Apparent proof that a young Bolivian student has discovered a vaccine that immunizes the skin against boils has provoked no little philosophizing and discoursing on the ways and means of this dread human malady.

Boils are sometimes caused by an over-rich diet. So is gout. But what a difference—socially measured! Boils are degrading, humiliating. Gout is a mark of affluence and social position.

Since the days of Job there has been no more distressing and depressing malady among the lesser afflictions of mankind than boils. Job held out against the diabolical machinations of Satan to make him curse his day and lose his faith in God until he "smote him with boils from the sole of his feet unto his crown."

The scientist who makes humanity immune from these painful skin eruptions deserves a place in the hall of benefactors of humanity beside Pasteur and Harvey.

Boil-immunity should be followed closely by immunity from the common cold. When either seizes upon the human frame all peace and comfort depart. A world without boils and colds would be a happier world indeed.

Matrimony, modern: A little formality by which a woman gets alimony.

It is a rather unfortunate person whose happiness depends on the interest other folk take in him.

CROYDON

The card party given by the "Wide Awake Social" of the Croydon firemen on Saturday night was a decided success, socially and financially. Anthony Wolfrum, of State Road, carried home a beautiful table lamp, which he won as first prize. The firemen are well pleased as proceeds will be a big help toward uniforms.

The girls desirous of entering Bristol Girls' Week are asked to turn out if possible every night from six to eight for the remainder of the week at Croydon public school grounds. If weather permits, and enter their names. If names are not entered by Saturday evening committee cannot promise transportation.

The remains of what was once the M. E. Church, State Road and Cedar avenue, is being demolished, which has been a help to some of the unemployed. It will be replaced some time in the near future by a more modern structure.

During vacation months the Croydon mothers will be relieved of going to Bristol with their children to attend the weekly clinics. Clinics will be conducted by the county at Croydon public school. Details will be announced later. It is hoped this meets the approval of all mothers of Croydon and vicinity.

The bugle corps of Foreign War Veterans of Croydon will precede the Croydon girls in the parade of Girls' Week. This is a very generous offer and the committees certainly appreciate it.

Dave Ordway finds love and adventure when his plane crashes in the orange groves owned by beautiful Joan Marbury. He loves Joan but her reserve is impenetrable. Her cousin, Sally, however, is obviously in love with Dave. Gerry Flemming, Talbot Henderson and Barbara Holworthy, Dave's former fiancée, visit him. Barbara is hostile toward the girls. Under cover of darkness, Dave leaves, with Gerry and Talbot, to even a score against Mueller, neighboring plantation owner, who, in reality, is Snatch Cazzoni, a bootlegger. Mueller tried to force his attentions upon Joan and also robbed Dave and destroyed his plane. Planning to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's, the boys come upon a hangar containing four planes, and also discover a liquor-cutting plant. Figures loom in the dark. Dave grapples with the nearest one. It is Joan. Unable to resist, they kiss. Headless of danger, the girls had followed but are ordered back. On the way, Barbara, in revenge, pretends to hear Dave calling Joan. Joan goes back in search of him accompanied only by her colored mammy.

CHAPTER XXV.

"MISS JOAN, what is you?" Hannah's voice held a sharp note of hysteria. "Dey's men comin' in de back doah!"

Joan knew a moment of wild panic. Where was Dave? Surely he would not have called her and then hurried away! She heard the scuffling of feet in the rear of the house.

She grasped the moist hand of the aged negro and began to tow her hurriedly toward the front door. A harsh voice from the darkness ahead struck her like a slap in the face.

"C'mon, you guys. If they're in here, we'll smoke 'em out!"

No Retreat.

She stopped abruptly, her heart pounding in her ears. She was cut off, front and rear. There was a patio, she remembered, which opened off the dining room, but she dared not search for it. There had been footsteps in that direction. The entire house re-echoed with noise. Shouts from the kitchen rolled through the empty rooms like the strident murmur of an angry mob. She must find a hiding place, instantly. Dark and without any of the familiar furniture, this house was now alien, unfriendly. She must remember what it had looked like when Anne and Ted had lived here. She had been in Anne's room many, many times. A wide, cool chamber, high-ceilinged after the Spanish fashion. Now she remembered. Of course, the great stairway was just behind her, to the right. She hurried through the darkness, impatient of Hannah's reluctant weight dragging at her.

"Please hurry, Hannah!" she whispered. Hannah started convulsively. Her hand twitched in Joan's. "Doan' have to tell me dat, Miss Joan," she panted. "Dey's a monstrous somepin' snappin' at mah feet right dis minnit!"

The forged iron banisters were familiar to Joan's hand. There had been an ancient tapestry of dull red and gold at the top of the stairs. Only the darkness and the noise from below were strange. But Anne, smiling and hospitable, would not be waiting in her beloved room. Anne and Ted, Joan remembered, were running a little bakery in Miami now, glad to earn sufficient money to clothe, feed and shelter themselves.

A shout reverberated through the hall. If one of those men should use a flashlight, it would be all over. Why did Hannah pull so? There they were around the corner now, hidden for the moment in the upper hall which led from Anne's room to one of the many guest chambers in the rear. Joan tripped on a pile of rubbish and would have pitched headlong to the floor had Hannah's weight not jerked her upright. It was lighter here. Joan glanced up at the ceiling. There was a jagged hole in the roof where the tiles and sheathing had fallen away. The moonlight stared coldly between the beams, which reminded Joan of the bars to a jail window. How Anne would have hated that hole heard the stamping of heavy boots on the floor below. The stairway creaked as someone mounted the loosened treads. The frightened girl glanced wildly around the room. The only remaining hiding place was Anne's closet, yawning pitch-black in the dark corner. Joan's flesh crawled at the thought of entering it. There might be snakes and scorpions there. But she remembered the way Hannah's eyes glared at her. Hannah whimpered like a baby as Joan dragged her toward the open door.

Trapped.

The absolute blackness was worse than Joan had expected. When the door had been closed, the sides of the narrow space seemed to close in on them like a collapsible box. Hannah's fleshy shoulder pressed against the girl's body. The negroess was trembling as if with a chill. "Miss Joan," she chattered, "I smell snakes here. Let's us go 'way."

The door burst open and the blinding glare of a flashlight blazed into the cell-like closet.

in the roof and that rubbish on the floor! Anne had loved the house so!

"Miss Joan, I've done beat," gasped Hannah. "I've plumb winded, I is, an' you better jes' go 'way and lea' me here to cetch mah breath."

"Just a few more steps, Hannah, dear," begged Joan, desperately. "Mr. Dave must be around here somewhere. If he isn't, we'll find a place to hide. Please, Hannah, come on."

Refuge Needed.

They stumbled across the threshold of Anne's room, now a stark, grim cell lighted by the four long windows which had overlooked a garden gay with bright-hued tropic flowers. Once the room had been fragrant with perfumes and cosmetics; now there was only the decaying smell of damp plaster and rotting vegetation. The walls themselves seemed to have undergone a change. Once they had smiled beneath their colorful hangings; now they stared reproachfully at the intruders, as if wishful only for peace and quiet in which to crumble into dust.

Joan shivered, although the air was stifling. She had not realized the room would be like this. She had turned to it as a refuge, but it was as unfriendly as the men from whom she was trying to escape. Where was Dave? She

"Sh!" whispered Joan, fighting for self-control. "There's someone outside."

"I'd as soon be daid as here," moaned Hannah, rocking her huge body back and forth.

Joan fumbled around and placed her slender hand across Hannah's mouth. The slithering footsteps on the other side of the cypress door had died away. The silence was as terrifying as the sounds had been a moment before. Joan fought down an insane desire to batter at the door with her fists and to scream and scream until her lungs burst. Hannah began to sob, in her desire to soothe the other. Joan conquered herself. She placed her arm around Hannah's shivering shoulders and whispered meaningless words and phrases, as one comforts a child who has suddenly awakened from a nightmare.

And then the door burst open. The blinding glare of a flashlight blazed into the cell-like closet. Hannah, her eyes rolling wildly, her face gray and wretched, buried her head in her arms and sank to her knees. Joan involuntarily pushed at the light with her outstretched hands. Her tousled golden hair glinted under the incandescent rays like a diamond-flecked halo. Her cheeks were drained of their color. Her deep blue eyes were wide with horror.

was heavy eyed," he said, "his speech was thick and the reflex action in both knees was absent." In his opinion the man was intoxicated.

The defendant, Benecke, was next called to the stand and said, "My room mate, James Stanton, and I were invited to a farewell party to be given for a boss of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation and we left our room about eight-thirty in the evening, March 13, and drove to the place of the party. I had only two bottles of a near-beer," continued Benecke, "and soon after midnight the party broke up. I volunteered to take Stanton and a Miss Frake to her home in Bristol."

"On our way home we passed an accident at the corner of Pond and Washington streets, in Bristol. I wanted to stop and see what it was all about, but Miss Frake and Mr. Goodman were in a hurry to get home. After taking them to their homes, Stanton and I came back to the scene of the accident and parked our car on the side of the highway and walked around the wrecked car."

After leaving the scene of the accident they were pursued by the policemen and were put under arrest. Benecke was taken to the police station and kept there until noon the following day.

Miss Peggy Weeks, who is employed in the offices of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, testified she had "the last dance with Herman and he was not drunk. We all left together," said Miss Weeks. "I have never known him to get drunk."

Charles Goodman, Jr., testified that he worked with the defendant and that his speech was always "thick," because he was a German and had been here only two years. He also stated that his conduct and character was "very good."

Another workman, Wilbur Cox, also testified that he had never seen Benecke drink and that he was "surprised to hear of his arrest."

nical objections to the form of indictment and the method of drawing the jury panel. Efforts on the part of defense counsel to halt the trial failed, but a motion for separate trials for the three men involved in the crime was granted.

The other two, indicted for murder last week, are Marion Ellis, 22 years old, of Philadelphia, and John Tagg, Jr., of South Langhorne. Ellis will be tried next week and Tagg the last week in May.

Snipes' sweetheart, Miss Catherine A. Lynch, 22 years old, 3020 Frankford avenue, Philadelphia, appeared in the court room yesterday, crying bitterly while the jurors were being selected and asserting that she was "going to stick by him until the end."

Snipes escaped from the Bucks County penitentiary here on April 22 and was captured 45 minutes later by a posse headed by State Police.

It is the first murder trial over which Judge Boyer has presided since his elevation to the bench. He formerly served as United States District Attorney of the Philadelphia district.

Judge Boyer granted an action for Satter and Achey to hold separate trials for two other young men, Merlon Ellis, 21, also of Philadelphia, and John Tagg, South Langhorne, who were arrested as accomplices of Snipes after he refused to quash the indictment because of minor technicalities.

Informal Party Will Be Tendered Lodge Officer

Members of Washington Camp, No. 789, P. O. S. of A., have been invited to attend an informal birthday party to be given in honor of Brother Charles B. Helms, state secretary of the P. O. S. of A., this evening.

Washington Camp, No. 50, P. O. S. of A., of Roxborough, has arranged the affair, Brother Helms being an active member of this camp. The party will take place in the lodge rooms at Manayunk and Krams avenues, Roxborough.

Transportation will be provided for those who care to attend. Members will meet at Odd Fellows Hall, Radcliffe and Walnut streets, at seven o'clock.

Bottles and Paint Thrown Into Houses

Paint and bottle throwers invaded Bristol last night and took aim at 1004 Wood street. The property is occupied by Mrs. Dorsor. The affair took place between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.

The Croydon section was also visited and the house of George Smith, Cedar avenue, was considerably damaged. Bottles of paint and a pitch-like substance were thrown through three front windows into the living room where it splattered over the furniture and rugs.

An attempt was made to damage the house adjoining the Smith residence. It is occupied by the Jane family. The aim in this instance was poor, however, and the liquid only struck the outside of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kellett, of Cedar street, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at Dr. J. Fred Wagner's hospital. Mrs. Kellett was formerly Miss Mildred Streep.

NEW MANAGER HOPEFUL OF HARRISBURG SENATORS

By Gene Myers
I. N. S. Sports Writer
HARRISBURG, May 14—With a new manager at the helm for his first season-long term, the Harrisburg Senators face the 1931 campaign in the NYP circuit with high hopes of taking another loop pennant to the local flagstaff.

And for a basis for that hope, Harrisburg has a mound staff which looks likely to be one of the best in the league, an outfield conceded to over-top its rivals, and a strong infield.

Red McBride, veteran of four campaigns, will hold down left field. McBride led the league in hitting last season, playing in every game and winding up with a .378 average. In center, Babe Fischer, formerly with Elmira, will be found and Lou Finney, a rookie gotten from the Athletics, will handle right.

Stan Lewan, a .335 batter who covered first base for Hazleton last season, will have the call for the initial sack, according to Manager Joe Cobb. Eddie Gulian, rookie hold-over from

"The Best Since Speaker"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

"Chuck" KLEIN—THE PHILS' PILL-POUNDER WHO SEEMS DESTINED TO JOIN THE RANKS OF THE GREAT BATTERS OF ALL TIME!

CAN HE KEEP UP HIS BRILLIANT PACE OF THE LAST TWO YEARS?

SPORT BUG

OUTSTANDING outfielders have been many in the major leagues since Tris Speaker was finally retired by time a few seasons back but none probably has shown the combined hitting power and fielding class of Charles H. "Chuck" Klein of the Phillies. Like the immortal Speaker, "Chuck" patrols center field. Klein was reaching for a rattle back in 1907 as Tris was breaking in with the Boston Red Sox back in 1907. When the old "Gray Eagle" left the majors in 1928, "Chuck" was just getting his start with the Phils. He's now 25 and already has been a sensation for two years.

Klein has yet to develop the sheer grace and unerring skill with which Speaker for years snagged difficult flies, but that should come with more experience. Thus far, "Chuck" has been a much longer and heavier hitter than Speaker even in his glorious prime.

Klein's two-year (1929-30) batting average was .369. Last season he drove in 158 runs for the Phils, and—in the popular specialty—he slammed out 40 home runs, three less than he poked the previous year. His fielding, while satisfactory, did not land him in the topnotch ten among the gardeners in either 1929 or 1930, but he did compile the unique record of 42 assists last season. These brief statistics give a vivid idea of how potent a player "Chuck" has been thus far with the Phils.

This year, Klein started like the proverbial house afire. He made two homers in the opening game; and another, the next day, with a single, double and triple thrown in for full measure. There was considerable let-down after those explosions; nevertheless, "Chuck" is hitting above .300 at this writing and fielding better than ever. Klein is facing some stiff competition in the Philly outfield which also features Buzz Arlett, slugging Pacific Coast purchase, and Hal Lee, another precocious willow-wielder. With such pace-making, "Chuck" should demonstrate this year whether he merits ranking as "the best center fielder since Tris Speaker's time."

TICONDEROGA ATTACK TO BE COMMEMORATED

During Celebration of Washington Bi-Centennial Anniversary

PLANS ARE BEING MADE

"In the Name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

Early in the morning of May 10, 1775, the "Green Mountain Boys" of Vermont, numbering less than ninety and led by Ethan Allen, surprised and captured the British garrison at Fort Ticonderoga. Included in the capture were two hundred cannon which Henry Knox later dragged over the mountains to Boston where they were used to good advantage by General Washington in his siege of that city.

In recalling the 155th anniversary of this event the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission marks it as one of the significant dates to be commemorated in connection with the Celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington.

The nation-wide observance of the First President's Two Hundredth Birthday Anniversary has been prepared by the national Commission in charge to be the greatest commemoration of its kind ever held. All-inclusive in scope the Celebration provides for the participation of every man, woman and child in the nation. Programs are being prepared to be held in every schoolhouse, church, and meeting place in America. Extending even beyond the boundaries of America it will include the citizens of the United States living abroad as well as the people of all foreign nations who wish to honor the memory of George Washington.

The spectacular attack on Ticonderoga occurred less than a month after the opening gun of the Revolutionary War was fired at Lexington. It was carried out by men who appreciated the grim significance of the event, and who were determined not to turn back until Independence had been won. The spirit which actuated the attackers was clearly shown in their refusal to forsake the enterprise when Allen gave each one the opportunity to withdraw just before the attack was made.

When the Americans had forced their way into the Fort they proceeded to the quarters of the commandant, De La Place. Colonel Allen confronted the Briton with the demand for his surrender. According to Washington Irving in his Life of Washington, La Place wished to know by what authority the demand was made and received the now immortal reply, "In the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." Resistance appearing futile the garrison surrendered and Ticonderoga passed into the possession of the Americans.

Growl at Modern Contraptions?

Not This Substantial Couple Who Celebrated Their Silver Wedding Anniversary by Winning Air Pilot Certificates—the World Needs More People Like Them.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THE Reverend John Pyddoke and his wife celebrated their silver wedding anniversary in Nottingham, England, the other day by passing the final tests for air pilot certificates, after eighteen months of training.

Mr. Pyddoke is 61 years old, and his wife is 52.

Hurrah for the Pyddokes—husband and wife.

The news dispatch that tells about that silver wedding doesn't mention any children, or grandchildren.

I hope there are children and grandchildren, we need some of that stock to sweeten this rather sour old world, don't we?

Sixty-one years old! Let's see, that's about the time that the average man says:

"I don't see what the world's coming to; now, when I was a boy—"

This man didn't have much time to growl about the moderns. I'll wager that he was too busy learning to fly a modern airship.

And what do you think about mother and her pilot's license, if you please?

Will warrant this particular pilot is not fretting herself to death over a diet to keep her girlish figure, and I'd be willing to wager that she's let her hair go natural.

Who Are the Pyddokes?

Pouf—what's the color of hair and the weight of a 52-year-old body to a woman who is working for a pilot's license, anyhow?

I wonder who the Pyddokes are when they are at home.

Do they live in a nice, neat, little red brick house, with an English basement and a tradesman's entrance and a hob at the fireplace where you can keep the plates warm and set the tea pot to simmer?

And what are they going to do now that they have their licenses, the two plucky, sensible, interesting creatures?

No doubt their relations have considered them a bit barmy, don't you know, and their friends—oh, you can just imagine what their friends have been saying ever since the news of the first lessons got out.

But what did the Pyddokes care, I ask you? They knew what they wanted and they went to work and got it. More power to them.

I hope they'll hop into their plane and sail over to France and down to Italy and up to Norway, like a pair of elderly sea gulls testing their wings in a Summer breeze.

Or will they each fly a separate and distinct plane and come zooming over, wing and wing, like a pair of wild ducks flying north when the Summer sun is too hot for them?

I wish they'd fly over here and I could meet them both and tell them just how courageous I think they are and just how much better this old world would be if there were more folks in it like the Pyddokes.

Two many of us let the years get us down; too many of us lose the courage and determination to "do" which has put this fine English pair on wings and sent them soaring to new wonders and new things at a time in life when most men and women are complaining of imaginary aches and pains and looking around for a good soft spot in which to rest their discouraged bodies.

All of us cannot take to the air, as the Pyddokes have done—but, we can soar with our minds and our hearts.

Greetings, Pyddokes, Sir and Madam.

You've taught us what we all need to know, and that is that there is such a thing as age, when it comes to the body.

But courage never has birthdays, or, if it does, they are merely joyous celebrations, and don't mean a thing in the world.

NEW INVENTION

HIGH-POWER BURNER

TRY this simple test
on your oil stove...

PUT two quarts of cold water in a teakettle. Place it over a cold burner. Note the exact time you light the burner. See how long it takes to boil the water. High-Power, Perfection's newly invented burner, does it in ten and one quarter minutes . . . boils it in less than nine minutes starting with a hot burner! Will your stove do that?

High-Power burners are more than 30% faster . . . economical of fuel. They adjust instantly, high or low, and burn with a clean, steady heat that strikes the whole cooking surface for uniform results without scorch spots or slow edges.

Perfection stoves are modern in design, with smooth porcelain enamel, lacquer and baked enamel finishes in lovely new color. Combinations of pastel green and lustrous satin black, ivory and green, and ivory with black. Many sizes, all with new High-Power Burners.

Prices start at $18.00

Before you buy any stove, consider the cost of fuel. Modern kerosene (coal oil) is the convenient, dependable fuel.

High-Power Perfection stoves give all the cooking speed of the costlier fuels . . . using economical kerosene.

See them at your dealer's and choose one for your kitchen this week.

HIGHWAY PATROL NOT HAPHAZARD GROUP

Uniform is Symbol of Authority and of Service

TO ALL THE TAXPAYERS

HARRISBURG, May 14.—Character, courage and physical fitness are the determining factors for enrollment in the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol Secretary Clyde L. King, of the Department of Revenue, said today in a statement on the relationship existing between the patrol and motorists.

"There is nothing haphazard about membership in the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol," Secretary King asserts. "Its uniform is not only a symbol of authority but also one of service to the taxpayer and the visiting motorist. A high standard of discipline is insisted upon."

"The Highway Patrol is the Commonwealth's first line of defense against the reckless driver. It is the Commonwealth's curb upon the driver who persists in operating with faulty brakes, illegal lamps or other defective equipment. The Highway Patrol was not created to act as a damper on the man at the wheel so long as he drives within the law. The patrol is the driver's guarantee of personal safety on the highways."

"The Department of Revenue, through the bureau of motor vehicles, licenses operators and cars. It handles revocations, suspensions and restoration of licenses. The Highway Patrol is the department's investigating agency. It belongs in the department directly concerned with the operation of motor vehicles."

"In addition to patrolling the highways, one troop is designated to examine all applicants for driver's license. The Patrol is in charge of the annual fall inspection campaign. It holds a record for recovery of more stolen automobiles than all other police organizations in the State combined. The patrolman should be, however, not so much a cop as an educator. Courtesy is the first duty of patrolmen."

"The great majority of motorists want to do the right thing. While ignorance of the law excuses no one, it is part of the business of the Highway Patrol to see that the motorists know the law. But the intentional lawbreaker is another matter. We don't want highway patrolmen who think that the way to handle crooks is to kiss 'em."

"The Department of Revenue insists upon courtesy from members of the Highway Patrol in their dealings with law-abiding citizens, but it also asks courtesy toward the Patrol in return. When a highway patrolman stops a motorist he does it only in the line of duty. Broadminded motorists will meet the highway patrolman at least half way. The motorist knows himself that the highway patrolman takes a chance every time he stops a car."

GIRLS' WEEK SONG

To Be Sung at Grand Theatre, Saturday, May 23

(Tune: "Maine Stein Song" — Words by Mrs. George Miller)

Sing, and fill the air with song; sing 'til the old town hears us.
Come and join with our merry throng; let every girl be in the fuss.
Shout the glad news with a cheer; shout that the second Girls' Week's here.

Here for us to have a good time; the best time of this dear old year.

To our Ma's, to our Pa's, who gave us so much of their time and love;

To the girls, to the boys, to the town that is giving us its support;

To the fun, to the work, to the helpers so many, so tried and true;

To the track, to the coach, to the many amusements for us to do.

Sing and fill the air with song; sing 'til the old town hears us;

Come and join with our happy throng; let every girl be in the fuss.

Shout the glad news with a cheer; shout that the second Girls' Week's here.

Here for us to have a good time, the best time of this dear old year.

(Teachers in the several schools are asked to teach girl students this number.)

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a daily reader of your advice. I am in my early teens. I have a sister one year, two months older than I am. My parents will not let us go by ourselves with any boy. If my mother will go, we can go, but Nancy Lee, you know that boys will not do that. I have gone with one boy, but stopped. Thank you for your advice.

LONESOME BLUE EYES. I am but a child and your parents have complete jurisdiction over you. And if they have certain ideas, there is little you can do but to respect them. Why not utilize your time in preparing yourself for some career or profession? With a certain amount of economic independence, you will make it easier for yourself to achieve personal freedom.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I want to know if there is any possible way to overcome shyness. All my life I have been friends with everyone until this year in which I decided to "stop playing and work." I did, and now I am very unhappy because I have no friends and am shy.

WORRIED: There is so much to life that no one should be stumped for want of suitable topics. The interest and hobbies of your companion always make an interesting topic of conversation, and by the way, learn to be a good listener, as well as a good conversationalist. It will add immeasurably to your popularity. Your own intelligence and will are the two best tools with which to destroy the wall of shyness.

DEAR NANCY LEE: He is twenty-four and I am twenty-one. We have kept steady company for five years and have planned to be married several times but when the time comes he says we are not financially able or else the matter is dropped. He once told me we would have been married long ago if it wasn't for his mother. When he mentions our marriage to her she makes him think it is his duty to stay with her. The hope chest that I have been so proud of seems to laugh at me now. Please help me I am so unhappy and discouraged.

PAL: The answer to your problem rests with the young man. He has a duty to you and he should fulfill that, as it is just as sacred as any of his other obligations. Naturally, you do not care to come between mother and son. Why not carry out your intention of taking a business course. Perhaps it will make him realize his obligation to you.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a young married woman. Considered good looking. My husband does not want to take me to dances or any public place for fear some other friend will pay me attention or want to dance with me. I wouldn't for worlds do anything to mar our happiness, what could I do to encourage my husband to take me to dances?

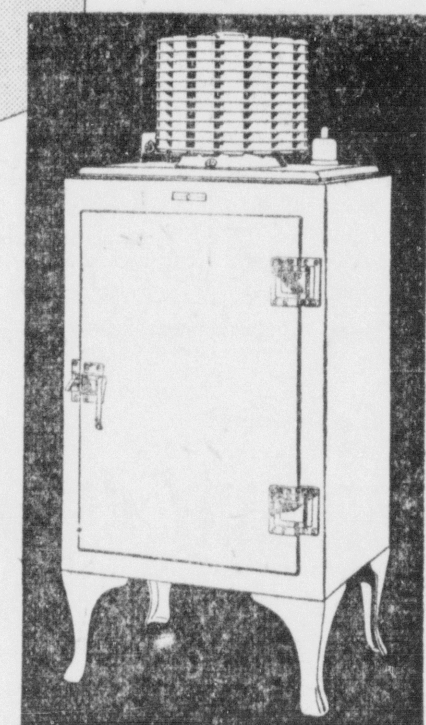

BLUE EYES: Although there is no harm in public dances, perhaps it would be better, under the circumstances if you both confined your social activities to the homes of your friends and your own friends. Surely there is a more delightful aspect to such parties. Try and make the dances at your home a little different. Put a little thought and originality into them and you will find that you won't miss a public dance at all.
